30. Read the passage given below and answer the following questions. 6

Competition, the process of rivalry between firms striving to gain sales and make profits, is the driving force behind economies. Efficient and fair markets are essential for economic growth. Effective competition is not automatic and can be harmed by inappropriate government policies, legislations and anti-competitive conduct of corporate firms. So there is an indispensable need for a definite system of law to ensure effective and fair competition and therefore enjoy its benefits.

Competition laws maintain and promote market competition by regulating anti-competitive conduct of firms. The history of competition law dates back to the Roman Empire when one of the earliest examples of competition law 'Lex Julia de Annona' was enacted in 50 BC. Influenced by the Constitution of Zeno in Rome in 483 AD, the Florentine municipal law of 1322 and 1325 was considered to be a pro-competition law. During the middle ages, England also saw the coming up of such competition laws under King Henry III who passed an Act in 1266 and King Edward III who passed the Statute of Labourers of 1349 and other statutes that outlawed anti-competitive practices. Modern competition law began in the USA when it formulated the Sherman Act, 1890 and the Clayton Act, 1914. The USA's codification for the common law position on restraint of trade had a widespread effect on the subsequent development of competition law. After World War II and the fall of the Berlin Wall, competition law went through phases of renewed attention and legislative updates all around the world.

The history of competition law in India dates back to the 1960's when the first competition law, namely the MRTP Act was enacted in 1969. But after the economic reforms in 1991, this legislation was found to be obsolete in many aspects and as a result, a new competition law in the form of the Competition Act, 2002 was enacted in 2003. This legislation has been quite effective till date. The Competition Commission of India, a quasi judicial body established under the Competition Act, 2002 has performed satisfactorily to curb anti-competitive practices in the Indian markets.
